

MICHAEL CHESLEY JOHNSON

PLEIN AIR PAINTING WORKSHOPS

"SMALL WORKSHOPS FOR THE SERIOUS STUDENT"

JOIN MICHAEL FOR WORKSHOPS IN THE SOUTHWEST AND COASTAL MAINE!

Two completely different types of landscapes, two completely different experiences! In the Southwest, you'll paint beautiful rock formations, broad vistas, creeks and canyons. Along coastal Maine, you'll paint quiet harbors and working fishing villages, lush forests and ponds, plus ocean views.

But each location has one thing in common. The workshops are limited usually to no more than four students at time. You won't find workshops this small anywhere else! You'll get plenty of personal help from Michael.

There is also a great deal of information on these sites about the locations and how to get there, what to bring and what to expect. In some cases, special tuition+lodging packages are available. Make sure you read the "Important Information" pages where you will find many of your questions answered. But if you do have questions, don't hesitate to ask Michael at mcj.painter@gmail.com.

Michael also teaches workshops across the country for arts organizations and other groups. If you are a member of a group and would like Michael to teach a custom workshop for you, contact him at mcj.painter@gmail.com.

ABOUT MICHAEL CHESLEY JOHNSON

One of the country's top plein air painters and an internationally-recognized artist, Michael paints the American Southwest, coastal Maine and the Canadian Maritimes in oil and pastel. Challenging outdoor events such as the Grand Canyon "Celebration of Art" have invited him to participate again and again. An author of art instruction books and videos, he writes frequently for The Artist's Magazine and Pastel Journal. Also a much-sought-after teacher, he teaches painting workshops across the US and at his studios in Arizona and Maine. His latest book is Outdoor Study to Studio: Take Your Plein Air Painting to the Next Level, which is available at Amazon.com.
